

Remarks

Please apply the following remarks to allow acceptance of each of the 10 Claims above:

Prior art "Chadisms Result From Floridation", by Scott Ostler, 11/17/2000; "One day, you might vote at an ATM", by Jay MacDonald • Bankrate.com, 12/12/2000; "Local comment: Better voting with ATMs", by Robert Silver, 12/18/2000; predate Weiss (U.S. 6,722,562) and invalidate Weiss as they teach similar techniques. Wherein Weiss (U.S. 6,722,562) teaches that the ATM is accurate and well controlled means of depositing money into accounts, he does not specifically use money as votes as described in Claim 1 above. Weiss fails to specifically teach means of transferring funds from voter's secure bank account into a candidate's secure bank account. Collins submits that ATM software controlling the means of depositing local currency to accounts exists as a means and therefore requires fewer core system software changes than Weiss means of creating, managing, and depositing votes. Collins submits that it was not obvious to an artisan of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention was made to employ into the teachings of Weiss means of transferring funds to a candidate's secure bank account for the purpose of registering a vote since no others skilled in the art found or described this method. Lambert, Francis US-6,572,014; 06-2003 did not describe this method; Weiss, Roger E.US-6,722,562; 04-2004 did not describe this method; Lane poor et al.US- 2002/0161628; 10-2002 did not describe this method; Chernomorov, Serge A US- 2002/0194060; 12-2002 did not describe this method; Glover, Marvin Joseph US- 2003/0052160; 03-2002 did not describe this method; DePhillio US-4015106; 03-1997 did not describe this method; Grace et al US44373134;

BEST AVAILABLE COPY

02-1983 did not describe this method; Boram US-4641240; 02-1987 did not describe this method; Peralto US- 5878399; 03-1999 did not describe this method; Challener et al. US-6081793; 06-2000 did not describe this method; Morales US-6607137; 08-2003 did not describe this method; Chadisms Result From Floridation; 11-2000; Scott Ostler; San Francisco Chronicle did not describe this method; One day you might vote at an ATM; 12-2000; Jay MacDonald; Bankrate.com did not describe this method; Better voting with ATMs; 12-2000; Robert Silver; Detroit Free Press did not describe this method. Furthermore, such modifications to the teaching of Weiss are not an obvious extension and therefore not obvious expedient.

BEST AVAILABLE COPY